

Gunjan Sethi - Angels Takapuna Centre Manager

Kia ora,

I am Gunjan and I have enjoyed living on the North Shore of Auckland with my two sons for over eight years now. I have been passionately involved in educating young children for 21 years and for the past five and half years I have been working with Angels Childcare. I began my career at Angels as a head teacher and now serve the centre in the capacity of a Centre Manger.

My diverse teaching experiences include teaching in three different countries with very different cultures and learning communities. I have strong knowledge of the Indian national curriculum, The International Baccalaureate (Ib Middle years programme), and the Early childhood curriculum in New Zealand. I consider quick adaptability, love and empathy for all people to be some of my strengths.

At Angels, we all thrive in our wonderful, loving and respectful work culture. As a centre manager I have been passionate about providing tamariki, parents, whānau and kaiako with a learning environment with equal opportunities for all. In the last two years I have worked on developing stronger community connections, parent partnerships and a unique local curriculum that adds value and meaning to the learning we provide for our children.

For the future I am inspired by the desire to continue serving our multicultural community in Takapuna with love, learning, kindness and respect. Let's work together to provide a better future for our children.
